

URSINA CITIZENS
PLEA FOR AID TO CYCLONE VICTIMS

Organize a Relief Committee to Help Those Who are Needy.

OUTSIDE ASSISTANCE IS URGED

Condition of J. L. Biddle Somewhat Improved, but Mrs. Cameron is in a Critical State and Recovery is Not Looked For. Town Still Attended.

THE COURIER WILL TAKE CONTRIBUTIONS FOR URSINA'S RELIEF.

For the convenience of persons who desire to contribute towards the Ursina Cyclone Relief Fund, The Courier will accept such funds and forward them to the committee which will see to their proper disbursement.

Indications are that the storm sufferers are really in need of outside assistance. An appeal has been made for aid, and a hearty response is expected. Checks or cash notes may be sent either to The Courier or to the Ursina Cyclone Relief Committee at Ursina. All donations will be publicly acknowledged.

Special to The Courier.

CONFERENCE, June 6.—Ursina has not yet recovered from the effects of Thursday's cyclone, which wrecked the village. The town is stunned. Virtually nothing has been done as yet to clear away the wreckage and debris and it will probably be weeks before signs of the havoc wrought have been obliterated.

An urgent appeal for aid to the distressed community has been made by the Ursina Cyclone Relief Committee, composed of the following: William Sanford, a prominent lumberman. At least three families are in dire circumstances, others are almost destitute and probably a severe need assistance financial and otherwise.

As yet no definite steps have been taken to ascertain the exact needs of the community, but outside help is asked. The relief committee is at work on a report which will show exactly what help is required.

There is little chance in the condition of the injured victims, although some improvement has been noted in the case of J. L. Biddle. He has a chance of recovery. No hope is entertained for Mrs. Sarah Cameron. In addition to her injuries, she is suffering severely from the loss of her leg and her advanced age mitigated her chances of surviving.

Linton was killed with visitors yesterday and today. They came from the mountain country of that section. A trace of the cyclone's devastation has been obliterated. The stricken residents of the town have been asked to turn their attention to clearing away the debris.

CHASED BY A BULL

Lineman Hunts Trouble and Finds Some He Did Not Seek.

David Colburn, a West Penn lineman, went to Nantux yesterday to hunt some trouble that had been interfering with the company's telephone service. He was in the middle of a field looking for what was wrong when he heard a snort.

Looking around Colburn saw a bull headed in his direction. The bull's intentions were apparently not anti-social as the lineman hiked for the nearest pole and got up it quickly. The bull's horns grazed his leg as he went up.

After being freed on the pole for nearly two hours, the attention of a farmer was called. The owner of the bull got the animal away long enough for Colburn to vanish.

STRUCK BY A CAR

Unknown Man, Well Dressed, Is Lying at Mount Pleasant.

MOUNT PLEASANT, June 6.—An unknown man, well dressed and apparently an American, was struck by the last street car going south on the main street. The accident happened at 11 o'clock and the man was brought to the hospital here. He cannot recover.

When found, he had six cents in change and a gold watch. There were no papers by which an identification could be made. His skull was fractured when he was struck by the car.

Mayor Returns.

After an absence of three days Mayor McArthur returned to the city and presided at police court this morning. Pen prisoners brought before him, one for trainfare and the other for drunkenness were discharged.

Will Buy Supplies.

A meeting of the supply committee of the Ursina township school board will be held this evening at the Arlington Hotel for the purpose of purchasing supplies for the ensuing school term.

BILLY SUNDAY'S SINGER
MUST PAY GIRL $20,000

Jury Returns Big Verdict Against Rodchouster in Breach of Promise Action.

CHICAGO, June 6.—A verdict awarding $20,000 damages to Miss Georgia Jay against Homer Rodchouster, a singer, for breach of promise to marry, was returned today by a jury in the circuit court.

Miss Jay alleged that she met Rodchouster in 1911 and that they became friends and that he proposed marriage to her and was accepted. Later, she declared, he refused to marry her "because marriage would interfere with his career."

Taxing rides, long strolls and discussion of future plans figured largely in the testimony of Miss Jay. Evidence was presented showing that Rodchouster was paid $100 a week and traveling expenses.

HUSBAND ON STAND

Testifies Against Youth Accused of Killing His Wife.

WAYNESBURG, Pa., June 6.—Oliver Price, husband of Josephine Price, for whose murder Walter Thomas is on trial here, took the stand today. He related that Thomas came to his employment through a letter he received from Charles Meyers of Connellsville.

He agreed to pay Thomas $100 a year and his board, but Thomas left August 15, 1913. Mrs. Susan Herd, maid at the home of Mrs. House, Price's daughter, testified Price came to the house the evening of September 3 intending to go to Pittsburgh the next morning. She was corroborated by Olin Starnes, a stationary engineer of Fairmont, W. Va., who testified he boarded at the House home.

MADMAN AT BAY

Murderer Bartolomeo Church Tower and Defies Police.

BUDAPEST, Hungary, June 6.—A mad murderer, August Tomasica, has since yesterday morning made an impetuous foray out of the city, and is now in the village church at Iroffany. Armed with a repeating rifle and 6 cartridges, he took refuge in the steeple after killing a farmer and his wife, and wounding their daughter.

The police tried to reach him but were repulsed with two killed and 14 wounded. In the force of police surrounded the church today but their commander confessed he was helpless.

WOULD END STRIKE

Conciliation Board Prepares to Visit Kanawha Coal Field.

WASHINGTON, June 6.—The board of conciliation appointed by Secretary Wilson of the Department of Labor to try and adjust the differences between striking miners in the Kanawha coal field and the operators, prepared today to leave for West Virginia.

The conciliators are Charles W. Sullivan, Patrick O'Leary of Pennsylvania, representatives of the miners, and C. A. Faulkner, a representative of the Department of Labor. They expect to take up their work next week.

WOULD CLOSE SALOONS

Monday Will Be Payday at Westinghouse Plant, Where Strike Is On.

PITTSBURGH, June 6.—Tickets at all entrances to the factories of the Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Company today induced other workers to join the strike and it was said that very little work was being done in the plant. Fifteen additional policemen were sworn in at East Pittsburgh and Turtle Creek but there was no disorder.

Monday will be payday and the saloonkeepers of all the borough in the Pittsburgh valley have offered to close their saloons on that day.

NEW ARSON OUTRAGES

Suffragette Burn Film Mansion But Are Balked at Church.

LONDON, June 6.—The campaign of the arson squad of the militant suffragettes continued today when women set fire to and destroyed a fine mansion in Buckinghamshire, about 30 miles from London. The mansion was filled with valuable furniture and objects of antique art.

The mansion adjoining the historic parish church which is believed to have been the real objective. This, however, the women were unable to enter.

Mother Jones Enters Canada.

SIKATLE, Wash., June 6.—Mother Jones, organizer for the United Mine Workers, left for Vancouver during the night without hindrance, the Canadian immigration officials who prevented her from embarking on Thursday, having been overruled by the government at Ottawa.

Rural Churches Lose.

WASHINGTON, June 6.—The court claims decided today that a rural letter carrier cannot collect additional pay from the government because his route is longer than was stipulated when he entered into a contract.

Two Killed by Cyclone.

SANBORN, Ia., June 6.—Two are dead, one missing and two hurt, in a cyclone which struck this vicinity last night. The property loss is estimated at $100,000.

REV. BURGESS HAS BEEN PASTOR HERE
FOR LAST 19 YEARS

Special Services at Trinity Lutheran to Commemorate Event.

EXTENDED A CALL IN 1895

Rapid Growth of Church From Small Mission Is Described; Baltimore Minister, Secretary of Mission Board, Will Deliver Both Sermons.

Rev. E. B. Burgess, pastor of the Trinity Lutheran Church, will tomorrow celebrate his 19th anniversary as pastor of the church. Appropriate services will be carried out. The morning services will open with a procession by 19 children, each child representing a year of Rev. Burgess' connection with the church. A committee of men will be in charge of all details.

Rev. Dr. A. Stewart Hartman of Baltimore will preach. Rev. Hartman is general secretary of the home mission board and has twice visited the church here. His first visit was when the church was a struggling mission and his second after it had become self-supporting. On his third visit he will find the congregation largely increased and in a handsome new edifice.

Rev. Burgess was extended a call in 1895 to become pastor of the church here at a meeting attended by thirty-six persons. In 1894 the church was organized and in 1895 worship was being held in the unfinished building on East Apple street. That summer the church was finished, costing $4,000. It was dedicated December, 1895. At that time there was a membership of 100. During the 19 years of the pastorate of Rev. Burgess the church has made many improvements. Twelve hundred and nine new members have been received, 27 of whom were received by certificate from other church organizations. Many received from German parents and from Sweden and Norway. There are 125 families (formerly of Somerset county) identified with the church. There are eight or ten Swedish families, one family of Danes and one family of Norwegians. Nearly every country in Europe is represented in the church, namely from Russia, Sweden, Norway, Denmark, Italy, Austria, Hungary, several provinces of Germany, France, England and Ireland.

At the time Rev. Burgess took up his pastorate the church had a second home mission fund. His salary was $1,000, $500 of which was paid by the board of home missions. Since then his salary has been increased twice. During his nineteen years $114,832 was raised for all objects for mission and other benevolent purposes. The developments in missions was as follows: 1903, $1,045; 1904, $1,085; 1910, $1,110; 1911, $1,150; 1912, $1,203; 1913, $1,436. The present membership is 801.

The Sunday school has a membership of 650 and an average attendance of 300. The church is peculiarly a children's church. An average of 50 children have been baptized each year for the past six or eight years. In all 780 having been baptized. The church roll department to which only children under the Sunday school age are admitted, now has 168 members.

The only living charter member is Mrs. Sarah Marietta of Johnston avenue. The new church on East Fairview avenue was dedicated September 10, 1911. There will be a concert by the church before the services tomorrow evening.

MESTREZAT CHOSEN
Report He Is Third Arbitrator in Street Car Dispute.

It is reported in Pittsburgh that Judge S. L. Mestrezat of the State Supreme Court had been selected as arbitrator in the dispute between the Pittsburgh Railway Company and its employees.

The employees recently selected Congressman Stephen C. Porter as their representative with the company chose Attorney James C. Gray. It was understood that these two, after about 10 days deliberation, finally settled the matter by telegraph yesterday, Mr. Porter being in Washington and that Judge Mestrezat was the final choice of the other two, to whom the selection had been left.

WATCH THE GAS.

There May Be a Shortage Around Dinner Time Tomorrow.

The Payette County Gas Company has issued a warning to consumers that there may be a shortage in the supply tomorrow. It may come right at the time the Sunday dinner is in the stove.

At 11 o'clock the West Virginia mains will be shut off and from that time until 5 o'clock in the afternoon the company will depend upon the rather uncertain supply from the Payette county wells.

It is expected that the local supply will be ample, but the gas company suggests that householders keep a close watch on their stoves.

New Signboards.

New signboards telling the distances from place to place have been put up at the crossroads throughout this section.

NEGRO SLASHES WHITE MAN IN ROW OVER FORMER'S WIFE

Stabbing Affray Takes Place This Afternoon in Negro's Home in Meadow Lane.

Calvin Harvey, a white man, was seriously stabbed this afternoon in the right which took place on the porch of the home of Olin Gibson, South Meadow lane. Gibson, a negro, is said to have done the cutting. He was arrested by Constable Matthew Monahan shortly after the affair occurred.

According to Gibson's story, he found his wife and Harvey in the house together. He says there was a quarrel, in which Harvey attempted to stab him. Harvey did not succeed, receiving a serious slash himself, just below the left shoulder. The wound will not prove serious.

Gibson was apparently intoxicated when arrested. He did not resist the constable. He will be held to await the result of Harvey's injuries.

WANT NEW RURAL ROUTE

Petition for Carrier from Here to Normalville Signed by 107 Families.

A petition signed by 107 heads of families in the rural district along the Springfield road asking for a new rural route from Connellsville to Normalville was presented to Postmaster W. D. McGinnis yesterday. It will be forwarded to the department immediately.

The petition sets forth that at present the only mail facilities enjoyed by these families are those at Normalville and Connellsville. Those living nearest the former place go there for their mail; others come to Connellsville. The petitioners are desirous of traveling such a distance to a postoffice.

The proposed route represents 24 miles in circular distance, a stretch of one mile being retraced, according to the plan. Approximately 600 people would be served. Nothing has been heard from the proposal that the Indian Creek Valley railroad carry the mail for that valley instead of having it delivered by the rural route out of Stewart as at present. The government and the Indian Creek Valley railroad managers are known to be negotiating, but so far nothing has been done. Residents of Springfield and Saltillo township are complaining at the present time and inquiries as to when the proposed change is to be made are frequent.

FILMING THE LOCUSTS

Babbie Seeks to Photograph Insect Emerging from Its Shell.

A unique and decidedly difficult feat in motion photography is being attempted by Babbie, the "movie man" in South town. He is running down the 17-year locust in his hair in the hope of getting a film that will depict the insect coming out of the ground and freeing himself from its shell.

The process is interesting and Mr. Babbie's attention was called to it by a number of small boys in South Connellsville. The insect can be seen coming from the ground and attaching himself to a tree, after which he opens the back of the shell through which the locust has emerged, is the exact shape of the insect, and the wonder of it all is that he can squeeze himself out of the shell without rending it apart.

Mr. Babbie figures that it will take several hours to get a foot of film but the result will be worth the effort.

DISASTER INQUEST DELAYED

Provincial Authorities Decide to Await the Crown Investigation.

QUEBEC, June 6.—The inquest at Rimouski into the Empress of Ireland disaster set for today has been postponed. In view of the investigation conducted by the provincial authorities and the Canadian commission will begin in 10 days, the provincial authorities decided that a local inquest would be of little value.

Official figures regarding first class passengers on the Empress now show 38 saved, 27 bodies identified, 23 missing and one identification doubtful, a total of 87 of the 711 passengers (not the third cabin, 149 were rescued. The crew numbered 415. Of these 241 were saved.

MAN CONFESSES MURDER.

Declares He Only Intended to Mutilate His Victim.

EAST LIVERPOOL, O., June 6.—Willard R. Johnson, arrested early today for the murder of Roy A. Hogue, confessed at noon that he fired the rifle bullet which entered through a window of Hogue's house last night and killed him as he sat talking to his wife.

Johnson denied any attempt to kill, saying he only intended to cripple Hogue. He said he was driven to the deed by insults from Hogue to his wife.

DIPLOMAS AWARDED TO 70 GRADUATES
OF HIGH SCHOOL

Enjoyable Exercises Mark Climax of Commencement Week.

SPEAKERS ARE WELL RECEIVED

Three Members of Class Alone Participate in the Program; Dr. W. A. Hunsberger of New York Gives Inspiring Talk on "Higher Manhood."

Seventy members of the senior class of high school finished their courses last night and were formally graduated and presented with diplomas at the commencement exercises at the Colonial Theatre. Not one of the three graduates that had places on the program referred to the occasion as the time of their departure for the "world's broad field of battle," or of their embarking on a voyage on "the stormy sea of life." The exercises were pleasantly devoid of these classic and time-worn allusions.

An audience somewhat smaller than those that attended the class day exercises and the class play was present, but every seat in the big theatre was taken and there were many who stood during the entire program. The exercises were enjoyable because of their simplicity. After the curtain had gone up, disclosing the class at table in caps and gowns, seated on the stage, the honor pupils in the front row and each girl carrying a bouquet of red roses, Miss Eula Satterfield, first honor graduate in the normal course, stepped forward and delivered the Salutatory.

Miss Satterfield chose an interesting subject, "The Play of Today." She traced the drama from its origin to the present day, finding that it came down to this age it degenerated into productions designed almost principally for amusement or sensational effect. She predicted, however, a change to the wholesome plays of the past and the establishment of the drama as a permanent power for good. Her address was well prepared and creditably delivered.

"The Real Game" was the subject of an address by Oliver P. Moser, Jr. He called life the real game and likened it to a checkerboard. His working out of the phases of life in figures of this game was cleverly done and his delivery all that could be desired. A selection of popular hits by Kiefer's orchestra lent variety to the program. The program was presented by the second honor man in the academic course, to whom was assigned the salutatory, spoke on "The Modern Art." The greatest art of modern times, he said is advertising. He declared that without doubt the advertising writers of today are poets and their product poetry. The efficacy of advertising was emphasized. At the conclusion of his address, he bade farewell to his classmates in a brief valedictory.

A commendation speaker, Dr. William A. Hunsberger of New York City, executive vice president of the International Peace Forum and editor of the Peace Forum magazine, gave the salutary talk of "The Higher Manhood." Dr. Hunsberger spoke against time as he wished to make a late train back to New York but his address was fraught with good things. The invocation was presented by the class by F. E. Younk, president of the school board. His short address to the graduates was remarkably apt and his words of advice good ones.

The invocation was asked by Rev. W. J. Everhart and the benediction pronounced by Rev. R. C. Wolf. To James Ellis Hunsberger was accorded the honor of obtaining the highest grade in the entire four year course. Howard Edmund Reppert was second. The following also attained honor marks in the academic course: Anna Kathryn Fette, Catherine N. Foley, Eleanor G. Horner, Clement Regis McGinnis, Oliver P. Moser, Jr., H. D. Shallenberger, Jr., Emma Irene Solson, Homer Dana Wright.

In the commercial course, Miss Eula Satterfield won first honor, and the others were: Mary M. Lowmy, Edna Melnick, Frank S. McCann and Blanche Stafford.

The class roll included:
ACADEMIC COURSE
Clen Atkins, Eula Munson, Elizabeth Butler, Leona Martin, Pearl Ratterman, Bernard O'Connor, Gladys Conroy, Rebecca Pierce, Harold Carroll, Howard Reppert, Grace Dunham, Joseph Rhodes, Irene Dierks, Dorothy Russell, Ruth Robinson, Catherine Foley, Irene Solson, Edna Melnick, Ruth Swanner, H. D. Shallenberger, Frank Shimmman, Ross Shimmman, James Hirsman, Donald Snyder, Clyde Sparks, Mary Hyatt, James Shea, Bertha Hooper, Alma Tennant, Eleanor Koney, Anita Turner, Louisa Lowmy, Mary Thompson, Scott Lyndine, Inez Trenbath, Regis McGinnis, Edna Williams, Gertrude Moore, Grace Workman, Elizabeth Miller, Fannie Wilson, Christine Miller, Raymond Ward, Margaret Morton, Mary McConnell, Mary McCann.

COMMERCIAL COURSE

MAJ LAY OUT COURTS.
Elite Club Plans to Have Tennis Grounds on West Side.

The Elite Club is considering a proposition of laying out double tennis courts on the West Side. Work will be begun, it is expected, when the use of the land is settled.

The tennis court in the rear of the Y. M. C. A. is being put in shape for play. The East Park addition courts will be ready tonight.

Masters Appointed.
R. E. Younk was appointed master in the divorce proceedings of Myrtle Covet against Edgar Covet, and Julius Goodstein was named to take testimony in the case in which F. E. Ducker seeks a divorce from his wife, Joan Ducker.

Saturday Half Holiday

Beginning today, the employees of the West Penn offices will have Saturday afternoon off for the next four months. Work will be dropped after 1 o'clock each Saturday.

26 SPECIAL CARS TO CARRY SCHOOL CHILDREN TO PICNIC

Arrangements Completed for Big Picnic on Next Tuesday; Students to Assemble Early.

Plans for the transportation of the Connellsville school children to Shady Grove next Tuesday for the annual school picnic have been completed. As has been the custom in years past, the West Penn Railway Company will haul the picnickers free. About 25 special cars will be necessary.

The following schedule has been arranged: For the West Penn school, three cars will be waiting at Seventh street, the students to assemble at 8:15 o'clock and leave at 9; Greenwood, one car at Eighth street and Lehighavenue avenue, assemble at 8:45 and leave at 9. Second ward, three cars at West Penn station, assemble at 8:30 and leave at 9; Third ward, three cars at Heacock's store, assemble at 8:50 and leave at 9:05.

The second movement of cars includes the following: Parochial, four cars at Prospect street, assemble at 10:20 and leave at 10:35; Fourth ward, three cars at West Penn station, assemble at 10:30 and leave at 10:45; high school, three cars at West Penn station, assemble at 10:30 and leave at 10:45; South Side, three cars at Davidson siding, assemble at 10:35 and leave at 10:50.

At the park the children will be held this evening at the Arlington, gives free rides on the roller coaster and merry-go-round and they will have free access to all of the park's other amusements. Tickets will be given out when they assemble on Tuesday morning.

JAIL MAN OF MYSTERY

Victim of Railroad Accident, His Mind Blank, Leaves Hospital.

A man who has been cared for at the hospital since November 12, 1913 and gives the name of Bill Russell, was sent to jail this morning. Alexander Eugene O'Donovan of the West Side on a charge of surety of the peace. At the time he was taken to the hospital he had been hurt by a Western Maryland train and since then has remembered nothing about his former life.

The hospital authorities do not know who Russell is his real name, but he has been heard several times muttering that name. He has also been heard making threats to do violence to someone and the physicians who have been attending him say that he may attempt a violent action on himself or another. Attempts to send him to Dixmont and other asylums have been futile as they are all full.

The threats he made come under the charge of surety of the peace and he was sentenced to jail to remain until there is a vacancy in one of the asylums.

URGE NEW HOME

Grand Jury Recommends Sale of Coal Under County Property.

Special to The Courier.

UNIONTOWN, June 6.—The grand jury's report submitted today recommends that the coal under the county home be sold if $4,000 an acre can be secured for it and the proceeds used to build new county homes, the need of which is urgent. In case $4,000 an acre cannot be realized on the coal the report recommends that it be mortgaged to raise the money. Conditions at the county home and at the children's home were declared to be good. A number of improvements were ordered to be made to the hospital.

Religion of the county commissioners to pave Lattaba Road a distance of 1.372 feet was approved, Connellsville to pay half the cost which has been estimated at $13,234.

The report also that 109 bills were acted upon, 95 true bills being returned and 13 ignored, one case being withdrawn.

STREAM POLLUTION.
U. S. Engineers are Investigating Conditions in Ohio Valley.

United States engineers are making a survey of the quality of mine water that is drained into the navigable rivers, acting under a resolution passed by the Congress as a result of complaints and petitions made by manufacturing companies and public service companies in the Ohio valley.

It declared that the pollution of the Allegheny, Monongahela, Youghiogheny and Ohio rivers entails an expense of millions of dollars to manufacturers for repairs and new installations of steam boilers and the water used by the inhabitants of the cities and towns is injurious to health.

FIRST CONCERT MONDAY

Connellsville Military Band Will Open the Summer Season.

The Connellsville Military Band will open the open-air concert season on Monday when it will hold forth at the band stand. Miss Elizabeth Mae Brown has been engaged as soloist for the occasion. Leader John E. Gaster has arranged an interesting program which will afford an opportunity for the introduction of some novelties that have not yet been presented here.

Both bands planned to give a concert next Friday night, but in order to avoid a conflict, Leader Gaster advanced his date to Monday.

The military band will give one or two more concerts prior to June 20, when its picnic to Pen Mar will be held.

GREAT FOR EMERGENCIES

San Curo Ointment should be in Every Home.
There never was known a more reliable ointment than San Curo. In most every case where it has been used it has created astonishment. It drew a needle out of the foot of the daughter of Mrs. James Hitchcock of Centerville, Pa., after the doctor had used his lance and failed.

It has great healing and antiseptic value. It possesses so much healing value that it is guaranteed by Graham & Company, Connelville, and E. A. Lowe & Company, Scottsdale, to relieve any kind of ailment, whether it be rheumatism, boils, carbuncles, ulcers, all kinds of chronic sores, chills, blains, and chapped hands, or money back.

It's a mighty handy remedy to have in the house in emergencies for burns, cuts, or sores, because it relieves the pain, is antiseptic and healing. It's a wonderful ointment. A little family physician that is ever in demand. It's sold by Graham & Company, Connelville, and E. A. Lowe & Company, Scottsdale.

BEST SKIN SOAP.
Is San Curo Soap, because of its great antiseptic and healing value, it is used by the military and naval forces of the United States. It is the best soap for babies, which is used by mothers of infants should remember to use a cake of Graham & Company's Connelville, and E. A. Lowe & Company's Scottsdale.

NEGR0 IN CONVICTION.

Accused of Theft From Express Company. He Gets Term in Workhouse.

A. C. Johnson, alias Jones, a negro, recently released from the Allegheny county jail to answer a charge of stealing three suits of clothes from the United States Express Company which were being shipped in Connelville, was found guilty of the same offense yesterday and sentenced to serve one year in the workhouse. The robbery took place before the suit reached the office here.

Johnson was arrested in Pittsburgh on another charge and was serving a 30 day sentence in jail. Arrangements were made to bring him back here for trial.

POOR DIRECTORS HERE.

Rev. Minard Calls Around for a Chat With City Officials.

Rev. D. P. Minard, a member of the county board of poor directors, came down from Dunbar this morning and called around the city hall for a little chat.

During his stay, Reverend Minard interviewed several of the prisoners in the lockup and admonished them against the results of drunkenness.

WINDSTORM INSURANCE.

If you insure against loss by fire, why not against loss by windstorm or tornado?

A careful property owner can do a great deal to lessen the chance of his building being damaged by fire, but he can do practically nothing to protect his property from windstorm or tornado damage.

Besides the heavy losses, this policy protects you against small losses where the wind blows off shutters or breaks windows or damages roofs.

To learn the exact cost, consult J. Donald Hedges Insurance, Second National Bank Building, Connelville, Pa.—Adv.

Warning to Gas Consumers

On account of changing the location of the public road on the William Thompson farm, near Revere, South Union township, Fayette county, it will be necessary to change the location of our 12-inch main line. In doing this our gas supply from West Virginia will be cut off from 10 o'clock A. M. until 5 o'clock P. M. tomorrow (Sunday).

During that time we will rely upon our local field and expect to have a sufficient supply for all consumers. However, consumers are warned to watch carefully the gas supply. Those who will leave their homes for the day are requested to shut off the gas.

The gas supply to public buildings and stores should be shut off after business hours Saturday night or Sunday morning.

The office of the company will be open Sunday to answer any inquiries concerning the gas supply.

JAPANESE PIN CUSHION FREE

Given Away With 10 Cent Purchase of Tuxedo Tobacco.

Every body in the town ought to be "stuck on" this pin cushion offer by the American Tobacco Company. To start with the cushions are the newest novelty seen here in this line. They are shaped to represent cunning little Japanese tea pots, with a handle by which the cushion can be hung up against the wall in a convenient place.

In addition, from the smoker's point of view, when he buys a tin of Tuxedo he is getting the full worth of his time in the most popular and delightful smoking tobacco on the market. Every smoker knows "Tuxedo Process" tobacco is made from the highest grade Kentucky Burley, treated by the original Tuxedo process so that it almost instantly cannot bite the tongue. This fragrant tobacco is equally good for pipe or cigarette.

Inasmuch as the dealer's supply of these clever pin cushions is limited, it is advisable for you to make your Tuxedo purchase as soon as you see the sign of the dealer's window. Only one cushion to each purchaser of a ten cent tin of Tuxedo.

FRANK LONES LIGHT.

Georgia Court Refuses to Set Aside Verdict on Technicality.

ATLANTA, Ga., June 6.—Judge Ben H. Hill of the Fulton county superior court today sustained the state's demurrer to the motion to set aside the verdict by which Leo M. Frank was found guilty of the murder of Mary Phagan a factor girl.

The motion was based on the claim that Frank's constitutional rights were violated when the verdict was returned during his absence from court.

The Proof is Here the Same As Everywhere.

For those who seek relief from kidney trouble, weak kidneys, bladder trouble, Don't's Kidney Pills offer hope of relief and the proof is here in Connelville, the same as everywhere.

Connellsville people have used Don't's and Connellsville people recommend Don't's. The kidney remedy used in America for fifty years. Why suffer? Why run the risk of dangerous kidney illness—fatal Bright's disease. Here's Connellsville proof. Investigate it.

Henry Bowers, 1206 S. Vine street, Connelville, Pa., says: "For the last twenty years my kidneys have been in bad shape. My greatest trouble was rheumatic pains and I was sickened for several weeks. My back ached terribly at times and I was bothered by having to get up in the night to pass the kidney secretions. I used a lot of medicine, but nothing but Don't's Kidney Pills helped me. They are all that I have been using for years, since I found out how good they are. It only takes a few doses of this remedy to give me relief."

Price 50c at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Don't's Kidney Pills—the same that Mr. Bowers had. Post-Office Box 100, Connelville, Pa., N. Y.—Adv.

NEW SUN SHADE.

Brilliant in color and both varied and unusual in shape are the new parasols. Some are of one tone of silk, while many are banded with figured silks in conspicuous designs and gorgeous colorings. Plain silk with Dresden trimming is a popular combination. Few ruffles are seen, though many show shirred bands as trimming. One of the newest shapes is that shown in the drawing. It is of plain green tulle with stick of plain wood and depends for its attractiveness upon its unusual and graceful shape.

FEELS LIKE A NEW WOMAN

As Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Dispelled Backache, Headaches and Dizziness.

Piqua, Ohio.—"I would be very ungrateful if I failed to give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound the praise it deserves. For I have taken it at different times and it always relieved me when other medicines failed, and when I bear a woman complaint I always recommend it. Last winter I was attacked with a severe case of organic weakness. I had backache, pains in my hips and over my kidneys, headache, dizziness, lassitude, had no energy, limbs ached and I was always tired. I was hardly able to do my housework. I had taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound on one other occasion, and it had helped me so I took it again and it has built me up, until now I feel like a new woman. You have my hearty consent to use my name and testimonial in any way and I hope it will benefit suffering women."—Mrs. OPRHA TURNER, 431 S. Wayne St., Piqua, Ohio.

Women who are suffering from these distressing ills peculiar to their sex should not doubt the ability of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to restore their health.

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

NEWS OF DAWSON, DICKERSON RUN AND VANDERBILT

The Buena Vista School Improvement Club assembled at Buena Vista for plowing, weeding, blasting, re-planting and beautifying the Buena Vista school grounds and by all indications when it is finished will look like a garden along the Rhine. The following were diligently at work: Director Emerson Arnold, Prof. J. R. Robinson and Paul Dunn, William Dunn, George Patterson and a number of youths.

John Conn, Joseph Rull and R. E. McLaughlin went to Uniontown yesterday to attend court.

Orange Rohm and helper were at Buena Vista yesterday doing final work on the house of William Dunn. Swaine Harper is painting his house.

Mrs. Lucy Foster of Vanderburgh was the guest at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Emerson yesterday.

Colonel M. V. O'Connor of Darby was a business visitor in Pittsburgh yesterday.

The county convention of the Senior Endeavor Society will meet in Uniontown on the evening of June 11 and close with the evening session on June 12. Those going by way of Uniontown should leave Uniontown on the 6:15 car for Meadstown.

Great damage was done by storm and lightning to the house of Miss Anna Eliza Bowman of Flatwoods. Large holes were torn in the roof and the chimney partly torn away. The damage was done Friday evening.

The second bridge across Dickerson Run below the W. J. Hainey store is in a precarious condition. Supports have been used to prevent its collapsing.

Emmett Hamilton has moved into the John Shallenberger property and Jesse McFarland who moved out now occupies his son's property in East Liberty.

Burt Newmyer and William Johnson went to Markleton yesterday for a ten days vacation. They report much damage done by the storm in the Casselman valley.

The Young Men's Bible class held a very interesting meeting last night in the Presbyterian church and elected its officers for the coming year.

Henry T. Cochran has brought 75 racing horses to the Dawson Driving Park for service.

The quarterly communion services will be held on Sunday in the Catholic Memorial Methodist Episcopal Church by Rev. H. A. Baum. Subject of sermon "Nature and Place of Faith in the Christian Life."

The Epworth League will hold its convention at Meadstown on June 9 and 10. The delegates who are elected to the convention from the Catholic Church are: Thomas Cochran, Philip Cochran, Nellie Kuhn, Daisy Brown, Gladys Porter and Helen Ray Sherbondy. The delegates will leave on Tuesday for the convention.

The Dawson Kindergarten School was organized last October and has doubled its number since that time. It is holding its children's festival today in the Dawson Park.

A lecture will be given in the Dawson Opera House tomorrow morning at 11 A. M. by Rev. Bertrand L. Conway of New York on "Why I Am a Catholic."

The Pittsburgh & Lake Erie Young Men's Christian Association at Dickerson Run is nearing completion. The grounds are beautifully graded, sodded, with porches and steps and sidewalks around the building. The cooking department has its full equipment installed and a car load of seats and chairs has just been placed. One hundred men have already joined and from 100 to 200 more have promised to join. This institution will be dedicated on June 19 when a large delegation from Pittsburgh, McKees Rocks and Youngstown and elsewhere will be present. All the car shops will be closed. Speakers from abroad will take a part in the dedicatory services.

PERSONAL REVENGE AND THE PARTY'S PUBLIC DUTY.

Does Phil's little bunch of Bull Moose are a funny lot of politicians? Their antics at this time of the year were amusing. Many of them, including Editor Bill Stone of Fayette county, had been declaring that times were good. They joined with the Democrats in singing the song of psychological prosperity.

But the Colonel came out of the wilderness took one look at the situation, said conditions were bad and denounced the party in unmeasured terms for its national mismanagement. It then became necessary for Phil and his chieftains to change their tune. They suddenly discovered that the state and the nation are suffering from business depression, and they proceeded to denounce as being responsible for it, not the Democratic party, but the hated Penrose!

The ingenious reasoning by which the conclusion was reached is only equalled by the logic of some of the Barefoot organs of Fayette county in demonstrating that such depression exists in business is the fault of the Republican press, which has willfully and traitorously mentioned the fact above a whisper. Corporal Phil presents the proposition that Penrose is responsible for the bad times in Pennsylvania because he supported Taft, thereby dividing the Republican party and giving the Democrats an opportunity to win.

There has been an impression among the people that the Republican party was disrupted by one Theodore Roosevelt and his followers, who refused to abide by the decision of the Republican National Convention, the only proper tribunal known to Republicans. But this discussion is pointless. The events of 1912 cannot be recalled. Honest and earnest Republicans are now interested in Republican unity, not in a continuation of disastrous dissensions. The Democrats are in power and the people are already groaning under the evils of their administration.

The people of the Conneltsville region, for example, are in no mood to discuss the hysterical cry of moral issues on the part of the Democrats or the hysterical demand of Phil and others for private revenge, all at the expense of public interest, when half their cake is eaten and the other half is no time to consider private quarrels. The Republican party has a great work to perform.

The country must be redeemed from Democratic misrule.

UNUSUAL.

"He must be an unusual Democrat who could quibble with or oppose in any way any of the provisions of the platform adopted by the Democratic State Committee," says the Conneltsville News, Barefoot organ of the Youth.

The best information on the subject is that the Democratic platform was not permitted to come before the Democratic State Committee. It is the personal preference of the firm of Palmer & McCord, who are in political appointments for the State of Pennsylvania by special appointment of his gracious excellency the "good" and "good" Woodrow Wilson.

The indications are that there will be an unusual number of Unusual Democrats around this fall.

HELP.

The destruction of a large portion of the town of Ursina, on the edge of Fayette county, has left destitution and suffering in its wake, and there is urgent need of relief.

As a neighboring town in a neighboring county it is a neighborly duty to respond to that cry of distress. Let the response be prompt. "Give twice who gives quickly."

The New Freedom Standard conceives itself mathematically from the primary returns that Penrose cannot win, but the same figures show that Palmer's chance isn't half as good, and that "Pinch" isn't entitled to be a piker from Pike county. It is possible that the Hon. Dan Sturgeon of Uniontown missed the opportunity of a lifetime by not standing as the prohibition candidate for United States Senator?

The Democratic platform is one of the political jokes of the season.

It is not necessary to guess as to the condition of business, or to accept glibly statements of operations present or prospective of remote points. The seeker after reliable information on this subject need only look about him. In the Conneltsville region he has only to take a trolley ride and count the idle coke ovens.

The good old vacation time is here for the school boys and girls.

It seems to be the special mission of the Conneltsville News in this campaign to tell its limited circle of readers what a bad man Phil Crow is. President Hiram Crow is Senator Crow's son. Aside from that Crow is all right.

Greene county justice is modern to the finger tips.

That four-hour extra sleep service in the Conneltsville postoffice will have some, and perhaps it is true that half a clerk is better than none, but Conneltsville people generally will agree that at best this is only a half-way reform.

"Not a farthing note was heard," says the Youth region Barefoot organ referring to the meeting of the Democratic State Committee. Wouldn't that jar you?

Hysteria and Hunger don't agree.

Thiford Moots is slowly recovering from a grocery clerk. Who remembers when it used to be a sign of inferiority to buy a hunk of bacon? They're getting to be too many folks who sing all winter and dance for liver in the summer.

Porch Comfort

For the Hot Months of Summer

They Last for Years

Vudor Porch Shades

Vudorize Your Porch. If you knew of the great comfort that could be yours at a small outlay you wouldn't put off equipping your porch another day. Porch shades make your porch private—in fact, they add another room to your home. For any sort of weather you will find them indispensable. They also make your porch an ideal sleeping apartment.

Buy them at Dunn's. We show them in all sizes from four to ten feet in green and mottled. Considering the long service they give you, the prices will be found very reasonable.

New Corset Styles

The popularity of the three special makes of corsets we carry is the result of perfection in style, length of service and moderation in price. The new styles now in vogue in the particular type suitable for you will be found in a Nemo, Royal Worcester or Bon Ton, any of which will insure you satisfaction in comfort and wear. The new models which have just come in the market insure a perfect fit to your new style gown and mark you as up-to-date in your dress. If not already a wearer of our corsets, allow us to show you the exclusive features of these well known makes.

UNUSUAL SUIT SALE

New $18 and $20 SPRING SUITS at $10.50

WE bought these suits from the well know New York firm, the Fit-Well Clothing Mfg. Co., who over-estimated the market this spring and were anxious to make a quick cash exchange. These makers regularly supply us with some of our highest-grade Suits, and their garments measure up to our idea of high-grade clothing, which you know, means the best ready-to-wear clothing in America.

They were bought by us far below regular prices—which is unusual for this class of merchandise—and they will be passed on to you in the same manner—far below usual prices. We were glad to get these Suits, because they will enable us to offer you the Best Clothing Values we ever offered you in the month of June. Altogether we have about 350 of these Suits in very choice Worsteds, Cassimeres and Cheviots, all newest Spring patterns and colors, and a limited number of Blue Worsteds, and can practically fit any Man or Young Man from 33 to 44-inch breast, provided he does not delay too long. Come, Men—it's an unusual chance.

New $18 and $20 Spring Suits, $10.50

SCOTSDALE

Special to The Courier.
SCOTSDALE, June 6.—(The committee representing the Ministerial Association and Young Men's Christian Association are now making the preparation for the opening of the annual street meetings for Saturday evening, and these will be started about the middle of this month. On the ministerial committee are Dr. H. D. Allen, pastor of the Baptist Church, and Rev. O. J. Howarth, pastor of the Christian Church, and on the Y. M. C. A. committee are Edward Wardlow and A. H. Taylor, with Secretary J. A. Addison as a member ex-officio.

WRIGHT-HIXSON.
Miss Maude Hixson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph R. Hixson, and P. E. Wright, both of Scottdale, were married at the parsonage of the First Presbyterian Church of Greensburg, by the pastor, Dr. Charles Schall, on Thursday.

REAL ESTATE TRANSFERS.
The following transfers of real estate interesting locally were recorded at Greensburg during the week: August Strubbe, lot in East Huntingdon township to Jasper Strubbe, for $910; March 30, 1914. Percy O. Peterson, lot in East Huntingdon township to Elizabeth Z. Peterson for $1,500, March, 1914.
WYRE ANGLING.
Harry Laughrey, E. M. Laughrey, W. W. Seeman, J. O. Landberger and Thomas W. Hayes have returned from the whils of Foster county where they spent several days in fishing. They report that the bear crop in Potter county is said by the natives to be a large one this year.
The Christian Church will have their children's day services on Sunday. The pastor Rev. O. J. Howarth will speak on the subject of "A Lesson From the Flowers" in the morning. While this is especially for the children the old people, says the minister, will find the talk interesting and helpful.

In the evening, the children will have charge and will render a program entitled, "Children's Day in Many Lands," which will be portrayed child life in the mission field.
TO THE COUNTY.
Joseph Reynolds has bought the Ernest Hickey property in North Scottdale and expects to become a dweller in that section, which is counted as country, although with plenty of neighbors in North Scottdale.
CHILDREN'S DAY.
CHILDREN'S PROGRAMS.
At the United Brethren Church there will be the observance of Children's Day in the morning and evening services tomorrow. The reception of members and baptism of infants will be solemnized at the morning service, and like the place of the registration.
FOR SALE.
Two double houses, lot 105 by 120 feet, with for $36, for $3,000. E. F. DeWitt, Scottdale, Pa.—Adv.
FROM MILL RUN.
George Barkoll was here from his summer home at Mill Run on Friday and reports that the fishing in the Indiana Creek valley is very promising for the opening of the bass season. He says that many suckers have been caught, and that the valley is very beautiful this year with the summer visitors beginning to arrive.
ORDER BY PHONE.
Don't do without things because it is too hot to come down town. Phone us and we will deliver what you want. Mrs. J. W. Clark is in at her home, Watson's Pharmacy.—Adv.

OHIOPILE.
OHIOPILE, June 5.—Mrs. R. C. Holt and daughter spent Friday the guest of the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Robinson in Ursina. Mrs. J. W. Clark is in at her home on Garrett street.
The following from this place spent Friday in Ursina, viewing the ruins caused by the cyclone: Hugh Corrihan, A. A. Corrihan, Fred Rafferty, David McClain, Charles Grottelty, Carl Welsh, Clarence Taylor, Lloyd Linderman Cyril Welsh and Harry Maletta.
Children's Day exercises will be held in the Baptist Church here Sunday evening.
Mrs. W. B. Jackson of Conneltsville is here visiting friends for a few days. Her mother, Mrs. Ella Potter of Philadelphia who has been visiting friends in Conneltsville and Monessen, accompanied her here to spend a few days before returning to her home.
Mrs. M. H. Hochstetler spent Friday in Ursina.

Cookery Points

Hot Weather Fare.
In general, during the summer we should eat less meat, fat and sugar and starchy substances than in cold weather and partake more of fresh vegetables and fruit. Fruit and vegetables do not contain a large amount of nutriment, but they tend to increase bulk and contain salts which are refreshing and help to supply some of the requirements of the body.
At the same time, drinking in the summer is more a matter of habit than necessity, and if one makes a point of eating as much fruit and fresh vegetables as possible it will be found that the desire to drink in any large quantity will diminish, for the simple reason that the establisshment supply, to a large extent, the liquid refreshment.
There is, however, one important point to bear in mind if one desires to be healthy and cool during the summer months, and that is to always eat and drink slowly and not to indulge too much in food drinks. To swallow a glass of milk, lemonade or iced tea or coffee rapidly is, as a matter of fact, somewhat dangerous, although thirst at times makes one drink eagerly without thinking. Sip liquids if you would derive the greatest possible benefit from them, and if water or cooling lemonade is taken it should be at least one hour before and two hours after meals.

Burnt Food.
If fruit or vegetables have been burned or scorched while cooking take the stewpan and set in a pan of cold water (the colder the water the better). Remove the lid and leave the stewpan in the water about five minutes; then turn its contents into another saucepan. This prevents a burned taste or smell.

To prevent a thick cake from burning at the bottom—that is, a cake that must remain in the stove for an hour or two—sprinkle almost an inch of cornmeal over the bottom of the pan; then place a well buttered paper next to the batter.

Should a cake be burned on the outside through careless baking scrape the black parts very carefully and brush over with beaten white of egg; then dust with powdered sugar and put the cake back into the oven for five minutes, when all signs of burning will have disappeared.

Use of Citron.
Citron when properly used and prepared is so delicious that it should be introduced for a change more frequently.

Substitute citron in any recipe calling for dried fruit. For a plain cake or gingerbread add one cupful of minced citron slightly floured. Put a small cupful in the doughnut batter measured after dicing. In your lemon or vanilla icing put a little minced citron dusted with pulverized sugar, and sprinkle a little of it shaved on top of cake before icing is applied.

When the vanilla ice cream is nearly frozen remove the lid, and for two quarts drop in one of the large pieces of citron previously put through the meat grinder, again cover and finish as usual.

Homemade Wedding Cake.

A bride's cake may be made at home as follows: Cream together three cupfuls of sugar and one scant cupful of butter, adding the sugar a little at a time. Add one cupful of milk. Sift thoroughly three cupfuls of flour, three teaspoonfuls of baking powder and one cupful of cornstarch. Beat very light the whites of twelve eggs. To the egg and sugar mixture add the sifted flour and, last of all, the beaten whites of the twelve eggs. Flavor to taste. Stir all together thoroughly. Pour into well buttered and floured tins. Bake slowly in a moderate oven.

Cereal Bread For Children.
Cereal bread contains a maximum of nourishment and is an excellent food for growing children. By the omission of shortening the bread becomes more healthful, more easily digested and less expensive.

To make it, mix well one cupful whole oatmeal, one-half cupful barley flakes and one-half teaspoonful salt and stir into one quart boiling water. Cook briskly for two hours, rub through sieve and add sufficient water to make three cupfuls gruel; then add one pint milk and when lukewarm add one yeast cake dissolved in two tablespoonfuls warm water; add sufficient whole wheat flour to make soft dough; let stand until doubled in bulk, add enough more flour to make a medium stiff dough, pour into greased baking pans, let rise and bake in moderate oven forty minutes. When done it should be porous and slightly moist. This is best when one day old.

Tomato Purée.

Canned tomato soup can masquerade as a delicious purée if it is mixed with half its bulk of cream or milk. Season highly and add the cream before the soup is heated, as it is less likely to curdle. For variety barley or cut up spaghetti can be added.

He that buys what he does not want will soon want what he cannot buy.—Simmons.

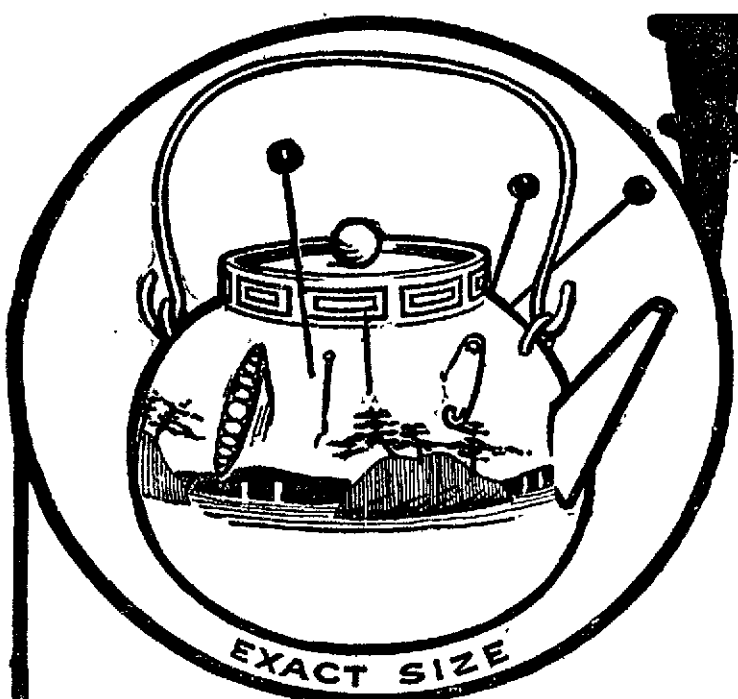

Queer Old Book Titles.
These are some of the odd titles of old English books published in the time of Cromwell:

"A Most Delectable Sweet Perfumed Nougat For God's Salts to Smell At."
"Elixir Baked in the Oven of Charity, carefully conserved for the Chickens of the Church, the Sparrows of the Spirit and the Sweet Swallows of Salvation."

"A Sign of Sorrow For the Sinners of Zion breathed out of a Hole in the Wall of an Earthly Vessel known Among Men by the name of Samuel Fish."

"Eggs of Charity Layed For the Chickens of the Covenant and Boiled with the Water of Divine Love. Take ye out and Eat."
"The Spiritual Mustard Pot to make the Soul Sneeze with Devotion."

Taking a Mean Advantage.
Once a thrifty Scotch physician was called to a case where a woman had dislocated her jaw. He very soon put her right. The woman asked how much was to pay. The doctor named his fee. The patient thought it too much. He, however, would not take less, and as the woman refused to give him the fee he began to yawn. Yawning, as every one knows, is infectious. The young woman in turn yawned. Her jaw again went out of joint, and the doctor triumphantly said, "Now, until you hand me over my fee your jaw can remain as it is." Needless to say, the money was promptly paid.

CHAPTER IV.

The Parfait of the Bond.
The telephone in Enoch Wentworth's room rang insistently. He had gone to bed three hours before, and he struggled to shake the sleep that drowsiness. He rushed to the telephone, its ring had become peremptory.

"Hello," he called briskly.
"Hello, old chap," Merry answered him gaily. "The top of the morning to you."

"Good morning," Wentworth's sleepiness died in a second. Something flashed back to his mind, something unpleasant, and an ugly frown corrugated his brow.

"Grouchy this morning," cried Merry with a laugh. "Or say, did I wake you from your beauty sleep?"

"You certainly did."

"Old man, I'm sorry, blamed sorry. Some day I'll show you I'm grateful. I couldn't sleep last night, I lay thinking of something I can do for you when my production begins to pay. I'm going to drag you away from the everlasting grind. We'll go to Switzerland next summer and carry out your dream. We'll sit on mountain tops, crane our necks over the edge of a precipice, and skid down a glacier."

"I'd rather go back to bed," growled Wentworth.

"You lazy old duffer, you may go in a second, only I want to talk to you about the luckiest sort of accident. Last night I ran across a fellow who's rolling in money. He's crazy to get in on a theatrical venture. We can catch him, I know. I want you to have a big share, to manage the thing and make all you can out of it."

"Did you tell him it was your plan?" Enoch's tone was brusque.

"No, I thought I'd break that gently. He thinks now I'm a devil of an actor; he might think I couldn't have so much verbiage; that my play might be of the brand some actors turn out."

"Good," cried Enoch, warmly. "You have more sense than I gave you credit for."

"Really? Now, old pal, go back to bed, but tell me first when I can see you. I want a long talk with you."

"Make it four. I've a pile of work to do before that time."

"All right, four o'clock. Good-by."

Wentworth hung up the receiver and passed a hand across his forehead. It was cold and damp. He did not return to bed, but dressed hurriedly, peering once or twice to stare at his reflection in the mirror. His face looked unfamiliar. It seemed to have aged. There were lines about the clean-shaven mouth he had never noticed before.

At four o'clock Enoch sat in his library. He was so absorbed that he did not hear a step in the hall. When he lifted his eyes Merry stood before him.

Wentworth stared for a second before he took the outstretched hand. Merry had changed. He looked young, handsome and vivacious—he was better groomed. A few stems of Roman hyacinths sat jauntily in his buttonhole. His trimness seemed odd in contrast to the old whiskered leucocress, as if he had already achieved fame and was living up to it, dressing up to it. These were the thoughts that flashed through Wentworth's mind while Merry took his hand affectionately between his own. Andrew was a few years younger than Enoch, but he seemed to have changed so much that he was almost a different man.

Wentworth drew his hand away suddenly and pointed to the low chair opposite. His friend sat down half perplexed, half anxious.

"Say, old man, aren't you well? You look groggy."

"I'm well enough."

"You're working too hard, you always did."

Wentworth did not answer. His eyes were studying a pattern in the rug beneath his feet.

"Say, Enoch, you're going to tend to the whole business, aren't you?"

The newspaper man lifted his eyes. "Yes, I'm going to tend to the whole business. I'll make it the finest production that New York has seen in years. 'The House of Esterbrook' is going to win money and fame."

"Good!" Merry "jumped up and flung his arms around the shoulders of the older man."

"Bit down," said Enoch. "We're going to talk business."

He rose, walked to his desk, and emptied a drawer of papers on the table. Merry watched him with a puzzled expression.

"You never guessed, Andrew, that your ambition was mine?" Enoch did not lift his eyes or pause for a reply.

"For years and years and years I have dreamed just one dream, only one that came daily to me. I might produce a great play. See how I worked! He swept the manuscript into an untidy heap. There were thousands of sheets. He had written on paper like onion skin. It looked like a lot of old parchment. He looked like a man who had been for years of toil—after a glance at the laboriously interlined and reconstructed sentences. Wentworth crushed it mercilessly into loose bunches and began to lay the pages by handfuls upon the revolving fire. A little flame climbed up and kindled them into a wavering flame.

"Here, here, Enoch, old fellow," cried Merry, "don't! There was a thrill of compassion in his voice. 'Say, don't—this is a wicked thing to do.'"

Wentworth paid no heed to him. He gathered the sheets together with a gasp.

"Hullo, old chap," Merry answered him gaily. "The top of the morning to you."

"Good morning," Wentworth's sleepiness died in a second. Something flashed back to his mind, something unpleasant, and an ugly frown corrugated his brow.

want to take from me my one complete effort, my one ambition, my everything—the work which is making a man of me, on which I have toiled steadily for weeks? You would do that! Do you understand—while I wrote I scarcely stopped to eat or sleep? When I did sleep I dreamed of it and—"

He stopped, too much affected to trust his voice. He laid one hand over the other as if to still himself, for he was trembling.

Wentworth stood looking at the younger man. Something cold and repellent crept into his eyes. He laid his hand on Merry's arm.

"Let me talk to you, Andrew."

"Talk! Talk! You damned thief!" He pushed Enoch aside with quick repulsion. His face was blazing with wrath. He was trembling with rage. He was talking about the man in a vague, headless, half-blinded fashion. A thought seemed to strike him abruptly. He wheeled around suddenly and faced the man beside him.

"Why in the devil's name, Enoch, should you do this? Have I ever done you one cruel, dishonest act in all my life?"

Wentworth did not answer. He returned the terror in Merry's eyes with a cool, stubborn glance.

"Did you have this hellish plunder scheme in mind when you drew up that bond?" he asked unsteadily.

"What did you come to me for when you made me your slave?"

"I don't know—exactly," Wentworth turned such a straightforward gaze upon Merry that he realized the man was speaking the truth. "As I told you that night, and I am telling the truth, it was nothing but a fancy of mine. When you came to me with this, Enoch's hand dropped on the manuscript which lay upon the table, you came with a great temptation; it was too much for me."

"Evidently," cried Merry. His tone was withering in its scorn. He reacted himself and his eyes turned fiercely upon Wentworth. The muscles of his cheek twitched as regularly as a pulse.

"The play is mine," Enoch seemed to have grown strangely cool and impervious to contempt or anger. "The play is mine," he repeated; "it is the due and forfeit of my bond."

The eyes of the actor narrowed and he laughed savagely.

"Take your pound of flesh," he cried. "What will you do with it?"

"Everything we had planned," Enoch's voice was calm. "Give it a big production, advertise it as a play never was advertised before, and build up your fame as an emotional actor."

"What, will you not play the convict?"

"Of course not. There is only one actor in America who can play 'John Esterbrook'."

Andrew rushed across the room in a blind fury. He stretched out his hand and dealt Wentworth a stinging blow across the mouth. "That actor won't play it. Do you understand?"

Wentworth lifted his arm fiercely, then it dropped nervously by his side. The veins rose in his neck and forehead like taut cords. He stood staring at Merry, who strode about the room in a demoniac fury.

"God! You're not a man! You're a damned, low-down, scurvy black leg. And to think of you standing there, looking me in the face—God! Merry raised his hand again as if to strike, then he dropped it by his side, shuddered, and dashed across the room. He picked up his hat and turned to the door.

"Where are you going?" asked Enoch sternly.

"I'm going straight to hell."

He lifted his gloves from the table. Beside them lay the manuscript of his play. He stretched out his hand and laid his eyes on the other man, watching him as a thief might, who fears being caught in an act of robbery.

"Take it," cried Enoch. "I have a copy of it, a copy in my own handwriting."

Merry stood fingering the pages.

"What do you propose to do with your—"

"Call it by a decent name. It belongs to me. Money does not count with me in this transaction. You may take all the royalties. I want nothing but the authorship of the play."

"Nothing, but the authorship," Merry's glance was a malediction.

He dropped the pages and ceased his hot upon his head. Wentworth watched him curiously. The outer shell of the man had changed. His clothes, immaculate an hour ago, looked disheveled. A lock of fair hair strayed down over his forehead. His linen had a battered appearance, the white hyacinths gushed man, with a fine, highbred face. His manners were exceedingly gracious, yet simple.

"I don't believe, Mr. Oswald, I've met you before," said Enoch.

"You haven't," Grant Oswald smiled cordially. "Your man tells me you have exactly ten minutes to spare. I'll go straight to business. I'm an Englishman. I have been in New York for three weeks. I want to invest money in something along the theatrical line."

"Oh," Enoch looked up sharply. "Andrew Merry mentioned you."

"Yes, I spoke to Merry one night on the elevated. He's one of our few American actors whom I admire. If a play could be found that fitted him, he spoke of having one—I'm willing to venture a hundred thousand dollars on its production."

"A hundred thousand! That would be a production worth while!"

"But—remember—only if the play appeals to me. I've been studying theatrical business since I was a youngster. I never threw money away on it."

"If you can stay I will read you the play now."

"My ten minutes are up," The Englishman smiled.

"This work can wait. Excuse me a minute," Wentworth lifted a heap of clippings and copy which littered his table. Then he walked to the safe and unlocked it. He had just opened the door and laid his hand upon the manuscript when the door opened and Dorcas ran in. Jason followed, carrying a suit case. For a minute Wentworth forgot the visitor in his inner room.

"Bless my heart, I'm glad to have you back," he cried. "Never in all my life have I seen you look so well."

She held him at arm's length and gazed at him critically. "I wish I could say as much for you, Enoch. You look decidedly seedy. I've got to stay right here. I'm the only one who can manage you."

"I beg your pardon, Dorcas, I've a guest here. Her brother led her to the inner room and introduced his caller to her."

"Mr. Oswald and I were having a business talk, Dorcas—not exactly business either. You may stay if you wish and hear a play. I was just going to read to him. If he likes it he'll stay Andrew Merry in it."

"Oh!" A glow of anticipation shone in the girl's eyes. She laid her coat and hat on the window seat and dropped into a low chair beside her brother. Once or twice she patted him affectionately on the shoulder. The Englishman watched her. There was vivid admiration in his eyes, but Dorcas did not notice it. Her only thought was of the happiness in store for Merry.

"Good-by," he said with an unsteady laugh. He closed the door behind him. Wentworth turned to the table, lifted the manuscript and stood glancing through the closely scribbled pages. Then he crossed the room, dropped it upon the red coals, leaned his head upon the mantel, and watched until each gray ash became a filmy atom of dust.

CHAPTER VI.

Stepping Out—Downhill.
"Jason, this is nobody I know," Wentworth sat staring at a card his man laid before him. He knitted his brows querulously. "Make him understand that I'm engaged."

"He's terrible masterful, Marce Enoch," said the darky apologetically. "He's bound he'll see you. He's a gentleman all right. I don't believe I kin rid of him easy."

"Tell him I can spare ten minutes," Jason ushered the visitor into Wentworth's library. He was a tall, distin-back against a pillow, gathered the folds of a silky portiere around her, and stared down at the square. She heard her brother's voice in fragments. These fragments were always the words of the girl, Cordelia, or of the father fallen to pitiful estate. She clasped her hands together with such strange pain and a horrible suspicion were seeping through her body and burning in her veins. Outwardly she was inert.

Suddenly she was awake again, wide awake tingling with life and emotion, listening to her brother's vibrant voice. The day of release had come for John Esterbrook. He stood with halting, tremulous steps, fearful at the sight of the world he had left twenty years before, hiding his eyes from the tumult. Then Cordelia ran to meet him—young, hopeful, loving and eager.

During a few minutes Enoch Wentworth fought the battle of his life. It was the struggle between good and evil, which every human being harbors to a greater or lesser degree, in one soul, in one body. Wentworth sighed. The battle had passed and evil had won. It was prepared to carry him through the most dangerous moment. With it came fresh valor, and not only the power to sin further, but a mysterious weakening of the moral tenues which made it possible for him to sin coolly and remorselessly. He turned on the light and with cool composure faced his sister. He met her gray eyes without a quiver. The asked a question which could not be evaded.

"I hate to tell you, Dorcas, there was a tone of reluctance in Wentworth's voice, 'but Merry is down again, down in the gutter.'"

The girl jumped to her feet. "I don't believe it!" she cried. "Beside, if he were, what has that to do with his play?"

Enoch did not answer. Instead he asked a question. "Dorcas, do you care for—do you love—Andrew Merry?"

A flush blazed into the girl's face, in spite of the telltale color her brother believed her.

"Yes, I care for Andrew Merry—very much. I do not love him."

Enoch gazed at her wistfully. He knew, as she did not, how easy it is to cross the bridge from mere friendship to love.

"Why did you ask me that?"

"I wanted to find out how much it would hurt if I told you the truth, Merry is not worth your love, he is not even worth your friendship."

"It is not true!" There was indignation protest in the woman's voice. "I know better, so do you. Only this does not explain about his play, for it is his play."

"You remember he left Juniper Point suddenly?"

"Yes," she raised her head with an eager gesture. "He went away to write this play." She pointed to the manuscript which lay on the table.

"Yes," said Enoch slowly. "He began bravely enough. Then—he went under, as he had done so many times in his life."

"What was it?" asked the girl.

"Enoch lay back in his chair. He began to marvel at how easily he could lie, because he had never come readily to him before."

"Drink and gambling—and every thing," Her brother shrugged his shoulders as if in disgust. "Of course he stopped writing. A man could not write in his condition. He sent for me. I stayed by him night and day and—wrote. You see—I wrote it."

He lifted a written sheet from the loose pile of manuscript.

"Dorcas shook her head with obstinate incredulity."

"I told him so. I suggested we make it a collaborated play."

It is not even a collaborated play, Enoch. Why, every situation, the plot, even the very words, are his."

"He wants me to father it."

"He must have changed since he said good-by to me. He was on fire then with hope and ambition."

"He has changed," accented Enoch gravely. It was a relief to make one truthful statement.

"He is to play 'John Esterbrook' when it is produced."

"No other actor can. Merry has the entire conception of it now."

"Where is he?"

"I don't know."

"I thought you promised Mr. Oswald to have him here and get things started for an early production."

"I did. I am hoping to find Merry at one of his acts. He must be found and put on his feet. There's a tremendous lot at stake. Dorcas, he turned to her appealingly, 'won't you help me?'"

"I'll help you," Dorcas spoke slowly, "if you can assure me of one thing."

"That there is no wrong to be done. There is no wrong to be done. Merry will have the opportunity of his life, if he can only be made to see it that way."

"And there is no wrong to be righted?"

"Then he must be found. When he is found," the girl spoke decisively. "The man must appear before the world as the author of his play."

"He won't do it," answered Wentworth.

He rose, put on his hat, and went out. Dorcas heard the front door slam behind him, then she laid her face on the arm of the sofa and burst into tears.

(To Be Continued.)

Inadvisable.

During a snowstorm on the Highland railway a train was held up for an hour or so. The guard, a cheery Scot, passed along the carriages trying to keep up the spirits of the passengers. An old gentleman angrily complained that if the train didn't go on he would "die of cold."

"Take my advice an' no dae that," replied the guard. "Min' y', we chaire a shillin' a mile for corpses."—Dundee Advertiser.

MINING MACHINE, INVENTED BY KUHN, MEETS STIFF TEST

New Device is Declared to Be Success in Actual Operation.

MINES AND LOADS THE COAL

Performs All the Operations Now
Done by Hand and is Operated by
Two Men; Power Cost Less Than
Cent a Ton; Means Big Savings.

A new type of coal miner has made its appearance in the Pittsburgh district. Its advent has been quiet, but it has been working every day producing commercial coal for some time. Instead of being made of flesh and blood, however, this miner is constructed of iron and steel. Its arrival is considered by leading coal operators who have been watching it as a forerunner of a revolution in the mining industry.

The machine is the development of Harry A. Kuhn, president of the Pittsburgh & Westmoreland Coal Company, who has spent more than 10 years and much money in the task he has completed.

The machine is a structural steel frame, oblong in form, which rests on a steering truck that rides on the floor of the mine. It contains motors for operating and cutting tools and the tools themselves. It attacks the coal seam in any position, moving up or down, sideways or in any direction in which the seam lies. It also removes slate when necessary. Electricity of compressed air power can be used in operating the motors, and so little power is required, it is claimed, that the cost for power alone is less than 1 cent a ton of coal mined. The machine is as flexible as the human coal miner. Their operation under all sorts of tests, running over many months, it is said, has shown that they will cut the cost of mining coal in half.

Mr. Kuhn, in discussing his device, says that one of the machines, a number of which are now working, has been running for some years, but it was not announced before because results were being sought and records made. The machine is based on an entirely new idea and takes the coal from the seam, cutting it in a pit and without a human hand touching it.

Among coal mining companies the machine has been watched for some time. Private views of its operation have been given to the result of which has affected development plans for new coal mines.

It is said it will take only 20 laborers to produce the same amount of coal as 1,000 men are needed to guide the mechanism. In addition to this, the machine cutting the coal cleanly, it is said, will reduce the loss of coal on both sides as even as a billiard table and takes out in excess of 90 per cent of the coal in the ground, while the best practice today requires the removal of 70 per cent of the coal, the rest being lost because of too great effort to extract it.

Until this Kuhn idea was perfected the mechanical development in coal mining was confined principally to coal undercutting machines. These machines were designed to take the place of the pick in making an undercut at the bottom of the seam. The cost of operating these machines amounts to about 10 cents per ton of the volume of coal undercut. Under this method after the coal has been undercut the miners drill a hole by hand into the coal and blast the coal, dig it out with a pick onto the floor of the mine and then with a shovel or his arms carries the coal to the pit wagon.

Edward O'Toole, a former Connellsville region man now located in West Virginia, is the inventor of a similar mining machine which has been in practical use for some years. O'Toole is now working on a scheme whereby the coal may be transported out of the mine in tubes instead of the usual pit wagons.

All the coal mined in the country today is carried in the pit wagons or arms of the miners an average of 10 or 12 feet. The Kuhn mining mechanism, it is claimed, does all these things done by the miner and undercutter, but in a different way. The two men that operate the machine, it is said, merely direct the power and the movement of the coal as it passes from the seam into the pit wagon.

Mr. Kuhn takes exception to the idea that miners will be left without employment by the introduction of the machine. He says it requires in the United States over 10,000 new miners each year to keep pace with the growing demand for coal due to increased population, while 20,000 miners, it is estimated, leave the mines annually for other occupations, thus making an annual demand for about 40,000 new miners. It is becoming more difficult as each year passes to secure the increased mine labor needed. So that the Kuhn mining machine, according to this estimate, would replace labor, but its replacement would be in or form of actually reducing the number of men needed.

Mr. Kuhn is at the head of one of the largest independent coal companies in Pennsylvania. Before the advent of the United States Bureau of Mines he brought out the use of the oxygen helmet for rescue work in the mines and trained his own men to use it. As he also brought out the plan the fan house of the mines in extreme cold weather in order to prevent dust explosions. This development was the result of scientific research and a study of the influences of low temperatures on the atmosphere forced into mine workings for ventilating purposes. The plan has since been urged by the United States Bureau of Mines in all coal mining operations, and when once properly used practically eliminates dust explosions.

GUARD THE KIDNEYS

Millions Die of Kidney Disease; Tens of Thousands Have It Right Now

The surest and wisest plan to always keep the kidneys healthy and free from poisonous matter that leads to Bright's disease, dropsy and other serious diseases is to take a few doses of Thompson's Barosma every three months.

It is a harmless vegetable remedy put up in liquid form, is quickly assimilated and gets to the sick kidneys at once. If your kidneys are weak, inflamed or clogged up, Thompson's Barosma will put them in splendid shape again. If they are not diseased, this greatest of all kidney remedies will tone up your system anyway.

Graham & Company, Connellsville, and S. A. Lewis & Company, Scotland, sell Thompson's Barosma for 50 cents and $1 a bottle on money back plan. It often cures backache, sideache, sharp, shooting pains and all kidney, liver or bladder disease. In conjunction with Barosma always take Thompson's Dandelion and Mandrake Pills (25 cents) when constipation is present. Thompson Medical Co., Titusville, Pa.—Adv.

For a five dollar bill the pick of all colors, all textures, all sizes.

Above $5, the materials are a shade better.
Big, roomy pockets, tight buttons, stout seams.

In Connellsville, you can get them nowhere but at the Wright-Metzler store.

They cost the merchant more than any other suits selling for equal prices, because these garments are superior in tailoring, texture and model.

The goods are pure wool of fine quality, cold water shrunk; the tailoring is finger-and-thumb work directed by trained brains. The models are English style or plain, smart or dignified, youngish or sedate and suited to the exacting tastes of particular dressers. You can lay down bigger money anywhere you wish and come out no better clothed than you can be with these suits at lessened prices.

The suits priced below are from stock—the remaining ones and twos that make broken size ranges in the glass cases.

There's serge suits—all wool and true blue; summer worsteds and chevrons in stripe patterns, solid colors, small checks and mixed tones. The collection contains all sizes—suits, long and shorts included; different models, a variety of patterns and more clothes goodness than like money will buy anywhere else.

Certain $20. Suits at . . . 14.85

Certain $25. Suits at . . . 19.50

$30. and $35. Suits at . . . 23.50

Don't make the mistake of confusing these suits with worthless garments sometimes sensationally priced. What's said here is a statement of the facts fully borne out by the suits on our tables. It's a chance to save money!

Correctly Styled Corsets

GOSSARD CORSETS. . . $2. UPWARD
REDERN CORSETS. . . $3. UPWARD
AMERICAN LADY. . . $1. UPWARD

One of these corsets, which ever model is best suited to your figure, under a summer dress will improve the lines of the figure wonderfully and enhance the beauty of the garment.

No woman, incorrectly corseted, can expect to appear at her best, nor get the most out of her clothes.

The corset is the foundation of dress, and if the foundation is out of harmony, discomfort and ill-fitting clothes result.

Our corset stock contains the best models that are made in America. They are decidedly stylish, scientifically made and they mold the figure, and support it, to conform to today's clothing.

We have a schooled fitter whose chief duty is to see that you have a corset model exactly suited to your type.

ROCKWOOD.

ROCKWOOD, June 5.—The expense account of C. J. Hemminger of Rockwood, candidate for the state senate, shows an expenditure of $205.34.

Mr. and Mrs. D. S. Helton and family of Rockwood departed for Berkeley Springs, W. Va., where they will visit their respective parents. Mrs. Helton who is a Western Union lineman, will shortly return but his wife and children will remain at Berkeley Springs with the hope that Mrs. Helton will recuperate her health.

E. C. Harsh of Cussewago who was recently the guest of Rockwood relatives, will soon depart for Washington, D. C., where he will attend the bicentennial celebration of Galland College for the Deaf, from which Mr. Harsh graduated several years ago. Misses Julia Snyder and Edna Wolfersberger, students of Irving College, Mechanicsburg, have returned home and will spend their summer vacation with their respective parents.

Mrs. J. H. Swanson, formerly a resident of Rockwood but who resides at Youngstown, O., met with an accident lately while skating on ice. The acid which she was using split and splashed upon her face, severely burning her about the eyes.

Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Miller and daughter Eva of Davenport, Neb., are guests of Mrs. Miller's brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Hiram Wable of Broadway.
